

Anchorage

An important part of main line projects are the anchorages. They quite often take the form of a conveniently placed tree, suitably protected with sacking, or the 3-2-1 anchor.

The log and picket is a very good anchorage that is easy to construct - we use it for monkey bridges etc.

There are a number of manufactured anchors available from companies catering for the off road enthusiasts - they advertise in the 4 x 4 magazines but these can be quite expensive.
